DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Noguchi (US5219786).

Noguchi discloses a semiconductor manufacturing device/system/method comprising a process chamber (Figure 1), a thermal control subsystem having a processing heating element/lamp (5) configured to generate a temperature profile (column 2, lines 51-55), a temperature sensor (7), a compensation thermal control unit to determine the process temperature profile and a desired temperature profile (column 2, line 66-column 3, line 23, 37-41), a laser compensation heating element (Figure 1) to alter the process temperature profile in response to the variation (column 2, line 66-column 3, line 23, 37-41), the temperature is a function of time (Figure 1C), compensation heating element is configured to alter the process temperature profile by adjusting power delivered to the compensation heating element and the power is proportional to a quantitative difference between the process chamber temperature profile and the desired temperature profile (column 2, line 66-column 3, line 23, 37-41).

While Noguchi does not disclose an infrared energy source and a heater wire as a heating element, a plurality of temperature sensors, and an infrared sensor, thermistor or thermocouple as a temperature sensor, infrared energy source, a heating wire, a plurality of temperature sensors, an infrared sensor, a thermistor or thermocouple are conventional and well known in the art. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to have included an infrared energy source and a heater wire as an alternative means of heating, a plurality of temperature sensors to more accurately measure temperature across the radius of the substrate, and an infrared sensor, a thermistor, or a thermocouple as an alternative means to measure temperature.

Art Unit: 3742
